Christopher Parris

Inspirational Teaching Award

The winners for this award:

Christopher Parris

"Dr Parris is one of the most enthusiastic lecturers that I have ever experienced. His passion for his subject is contagious leading to all of his students having a deep interest in cancer and also looking forward to his lectures! He is also one of the most supportive academics who is approachable, friendly and feels like he cannot do enough to help and support you. He makes you feel like he is really willing you to do as best as you are able to. His friendly demeanour makes his students feel like he is a friend as well as an academic."

Innovative Teaching Award

The winners for this award:

Emmanouil Karteris

“Emmanouil is an amazing lecturer, with clear module slides, always prepared for his lectures. This year he has introduced a new teaching technique, the use of mobile devices and tablets for an interactive study session. Every 2 hours a week, we have interactive sessions using an online app called: PollEverywhere, using this we can answer a series of multiple choice questions, as well short answer questions. This is brilliant; it engages all the students in the class in the race to get the right answer onto the main screen as soon as possible. “

Supervisor of the Year Award

The shortlist for this award:

Satwinder Singh

Jill Collis

Angela Ayios

Supervisor of the Year Award

The winners for this award:

Jill Collis

“Dr. Collis is student oriented and is always looking out to improve the student experience here at Brunel University; she makes herself accessible to students and is always willing to give extra assistance when needed. Dr. Collis is an excellent lecturer and supervisor, what I mostly admire about her is her remarkable ability to stimulate students to work hard on their research area. Passion, energy and optimism are attributes that radiate from her supervision. Her dynamic teaching and supervision style also makes students to listen carefully to her and seek her advice even when she is not their personal dissertation supervisor.”

Nicolas Argenti

Postgraduates' Choice Award

The winners for this award:

Frazer Lee

"Frazer Lee is my screenwriting lecturer and every week I look forward to his lectures - even though it is 10am and three hours long. Frazer has a unique way of making his lectures funny which means they are extremely engaging and entertaining. He uses humour to engage the class as well as a combination of traditional teaching methods, film, and sound to make the learning experience the best it can be. Frazer is really encouraging of group feedback and has utilised the Blackboard system to make student exchange files and provide constructive comments on each other's work. This approach really helps us improve, especially as it is an arts course."

Exceptional Module Award

The winners for this award:

Ashley Brown - Socio-Cultural Contexts

"Ashley Brown made an already interesting module the best that I have had during my entire time on the course. The exceptional structure that Ashley taught the module in made it easy to engage and learn from. Ashley's teaching style, which was a perfectly balanced mixture of lecturing and then engaging with the students in various ways such as debates and games, made this module stand out from any others that I have had on this course positively and I'm grateful for having the luck to have been in that class."

The winners for this award:

Emma Sigsworth

“Emma, was my PhD coordinator for long time. Since I registered as full time student I or my friends never face any problems as she is there for us, sorting the things in a professional way never delaying the issues. She is on time in everything; meetings, seminars, supervision issues, conferences and registrations. She has the right answer for most of the issues. I think this she deserves this award to say thank you to her, and she deserves it!”

Personal Tutor of the Year Award

The winners for this award:

Mauro Costantini

“Mauro was one of the few people in the Department to take the idea of Personal Tutoring to a whole new level. Since I started in Brunel and until now, the personal tutoring system in the Department of Economics has become better and better. Mauro goes above and beyond to make sure that all the Personal Tutors are taking their roles seriously and does his best to advertise the tutoring system more. I know that if a problem comes up, I can always drop him an email, pop in his office, or stop him on the main concourse and talk to him, and he will always come to the rescue..”

Student Teacher of The Year Award

The winners for this award:

Michael Scott

“Michael has displayed excellent work on his role as a Graduate Teaching Associate. During the laboratory sessions, Michael always takes a pro-active approach to check the progress of students in his classes and builds a good rapport with his students. Michael provides outstanding support for students who may need additional clarification or help on a particular taught topic. Michael always goes above and beyond his role. One example of this is that Michael finds time in his busy schedule to meet students outside the laboratory sessions to ensure he can help them identify useful programming resources. This helps students maximise their time and attain success at university.”
